48H Escape Flow

Miami

Luxury Nightlife + Day Experience Itinerary

No planning. Just follow the flow.

A curated 48-hour sequence built for short, high-impact escapes. Designed so you can show up, breathe out, and live the experience — without spending a single minute researching where to go next.

Welcome to your Miami escape.

This isn't a list of places. It's a flow. A sequence designed to move you through Miami the way the city actually unfolds at its best — slow mornings on the water, golden afternoons that taste like salt and citrus, and nights that start with a candlelit cocktail and end with the bass softening at sunrise.

We've arranged everything in the order it should happen. Stay where we tell you, arrive when we tell you, and let the city do the rest.

Read the flow once before you arrive. Then put your phone away.

Where to stay

We recommend basing yourself in South of Fifth (SoFi) or Mid-Beach. Both put the energy of South Beach in walking distance while keeping mornings calm.

Top pick — The Setai, Miami Beach — quiet luxury, three pools cascading toward the ocean, and a spa that makes you forget you flew in. Aspirational — Faena Hotel Miami Beach — theatrical, gilded, and unapologetically extra. Choose this if you want the trip to feel like a film. Refined — Four Seasons at The Surf Club — old-Miami glamour, Le Sirenuse on property, and the most beautiful pool deck on the island.

Book a king room with ocean view if available. The morning light is part of the itinerary.

How to move around

Skip rentals. Miami is built for being driven.

Default — Uber Black between neighborhoods. 8–18 minutes anywhere worth going. Sunset rule — Pre-book a car 45 minutes before you want to arrive. Miami traffic from 6:30–8:30 PM is real. Day on the water — Charter a half-day yacht through Boatsetter or GetMyBoat — book at least 48 hours in advance.

Arrival & first night

3:00 PM — Land soft

Check in. Don't unpack everything yet — change into linen, order a cold drink to the room, and sit on the balcony for fifteen minutes. The trip starts now, not at dinner.

5:30 PM — Golden hour reset

Walk the beach barefoot from your hotel south toward South Pointe Park. The water at 5:30 in Miami is the prettiest blue it gets all day. Take exactly one photo and put your phone away.

8:00 PM — Opening dinner

Reservation: Mila Restaurant (rooftop, Lincoln Road).

Mediterrasian small plates, palms lit from below, the kind of room where the lighting does half the work. Order the kaluga caviar bumps, the truffle hokkaido scallops, and a bottle of something cold and pink.

Book 8:00 PM — late enough to feel like a night, early enough to leave room for what comes next. Reserve 3+ weeks ahead.

10:30 PM — The first nightlife move

Sweet Liberty (Collins Avenue). Keep the energy high but the room intimate. Order the Dunder Mifflin and the Piña Colada flight. Stay one drink, no more.

This is your bridge cocktail — between dinner and the rooftop. Don't skip it.

12:00 AM — The rooftop

Sugar at EAST Miami (Brickell) OR Kiki on the River if you want riverside dancing.

Sugar is the move if you want skyline + bonsai garden + an Asian-inspired cocktail menu. Kiki is the move if you want yachts pulling up and a crowd that came to dance. Pick one. Don't hop.

2:00 AM — Soft landing

Order late-night truffle fries and a frosé from your hotel's room service. The reset for tomorrow starts tonight.

Beach, brunch, and the slow build

10:30 AM — Brunch with a view

The Surf Club Restaurant by Thomas Keller (at Four Seasons Surf Club).

Old-Hollywood Miami: crisp white tablecloths, palms curling overhead, ocean two steps away. Order the crab benedict, a passionfruit bellini, and stay long enough to see the light change.

12:30 PM — Pool or sand, choose one

Pool option: Faena Hotel pool deck — red-and-white striped cabanas, pomegranate spritzes, the most photographed deck in Miami.

Beach option: Soho Beach House day pass (if a member) or 1 Hotel South Beach beach club. Reserve a daybed in advance.

3:30 PM — Spa interlude

Book 90 minutes at Tierra Santa Healing House (Faena) or the spa at The Setai. Choose the jet lag recovery or Andean ritual. The whole trip works better if you do this. Don't skip.

6:00 PM — Sunset on the water

Pre-dinner cocktail at Watr at 1 Hotel — 23rd floor, panoramic, the sun does the work. Order a Yuzu Highball and watch South Beach turn gold.

8:30 PM — Dinner that becomes the night

Reservation: Carbone Miami OR Cote Korean Steakhouse.

Carbone if you want red-sauce theatre, tableside Caesar, and a room that hums. Cote if you want dry-aged ribeye, a butcher's feast, and a quieter sense of occasion. Both are the dinner in Miami right now.

Book 8:30 PM exactly. Reserve 4 weeks out.

11:00 PM — The main event

LIV at Fontainebleau if you want the iconic Miami nightclub experience. E11EVEN if you want something edgier and harder to forget. Bàoli for an elegant supper-club energy that doesn't end until late.

Get on the list before you arrive (concierge can do this) or book a bottle service table. Walk-up is a hard no on Saturdays.

2:30 AM — Final drink

Mac's Club Deuce — the dive bar that's been here since 1926. End the night somewhere unpretentious, on a vinyl stool, with a cold beer. This is the part of the trip you'll remember.

Slow morning, soft exit

11:00 AM — The brunch that earns the trip

Reservation: The Standard Spa Lido Bayside OR Joia Beach.

Lido for a leafy bayfront Mediterranean brunch where time moves differently. Joia for sand-under-toes, Tulum-coded bohemian energy. Order eggs benedict with smoked salmon, a frozen espresso martini, and a fresh juice.

1:30 PM — Beach, slow

Twenty minutes on a daybed. No phone. No itinerary. This is the only part of the flow you can't replicate by reading the rest. Just sit.

3:00 PM — One last thing

Pick one: a quick walk through the Bass Museum sculpture garden, an iced matcha at Pura Vida, or thirty minutes shopping the boutiques on Ocean Drive's quieter end. You're letting the trip end gently.

4:30 PM — Pack and go

Late checkout requested at booking. Uber Black to MIA 2 hours and 15 minutes before your flight on Sunday — Sunday traffic is forgiving but not free.

THE FLOW IS YOURS

That's the whole plan.

Show up. Follow it. Live it.

More escape flows arriving soon —

Vegas. NYC. Tulum. Dubai.

Stay on the list. We'll send the next one when it's ready.
